GOING, GOING, GONE!

Above: Six-year-old Olivia Wilson, of Port Hope, gets one last look at her long hair before hairstylist Tera Hellam of Nir-va-na Hair Studio cuts it all off as Olivia's mom, Kate, looks on. Olivia decided she would donate her hair to Locks of Love, a public non-profit organization that provides hairpieces to financially disadvantaged patients under age 18 suffering from long-term medical hair loss from any diagnosis. Olivia was also participating in a project for her Grade 1 class at Central Public School in which the students help other people, the environment or animals.
